SAVE THE DATE

The birds will flock back in time for our fall program, planned for Tuesday, September 27. Multi-genre Writing - How do They do That? will be held at Story & Song Center for Art & Culture, 4-6 pm.

George Weinstein and Julia McDermott will share how they successfully write in several different styles.

George Weinstein heads up the Atlanta Writers Group and the Atlanta Writers Conference. He will be our special guest. Joining George is Julia McDermott, local author who has relocated here from Atlanta. Several other multi-genre authors reside in Nassau County, and any in attendance will be introduced. The meeting

Story & Song Gallery features the work of artist-author Donna Lee Overly during August and September.

A variety of subjects and price ranges are available. An artist reception is planned for Saturday, August 27, 2 - 5 pm. A portion of proceeds will benefit a local charity. Come and be inspired by abstracts, beaches, marshes, sunsets, and more.

A few things this month: .

Works in Progress (WIP) recently decided to meet weekly during the summer, making hay while the sun shines. Resources, feedback for your writing, good coffee and beer await at Mocama Brewery. Contact is Mollie Bork, molliepilling@yahoo.com

WIP is doing a group read or reread of Stephen King's On Writing. A coincidence. Find related content in the Florida Writers August NE FL newsletter from Vic DiGenti, including his parable of persistence:
